

I never knew that!

.....CORRALES CHRONICLES

Did you know that sand dunes once covered well over 20 acres near the Montoya's Arroyo in Corrales? There was enough room to play "cholla," in which two teams on horseback would try to pull a wooden "star" across a goal line. And, of course, lots of room and sand to "bury" a friend. Corrales has a sand dunes park, but much of the sand has disappeared and the rest is being taken over by sagebrush. The remnants are at the end of Anya Road.

Photo by Dick Kent of the Kent children and friends, courtesy the Kent family.

Information provided by Corrales Historical Society Archives Committee